Mark Schmidt asked that I simply send the invite out to the usual group and he will make sure the information is passed on to all other technical folks that need to be involved, so I assume he has it covered.

Sure. By the way, I didn't notice NOAA and FWS in your invite...are they invited?

Subject: RE: BERA Dispute Meeting

To clarify, these topics are not being discussed as part of the official dispute process. During the call that initiated the dispute resolution process held on January 11, all parties agreed that several topics would be deferred to a technical discussion, to determine if these topics could be resolved through that process, rather than through the official dispute process. This meeting is the first of the technical discussions.

Therefore, attendance at these parties should be limited to technical folks from all agencies, including the trustees NOAA and FWS. Attorneys and the dispute resolution official are not expected to be in attendance at these technical discussions.

Thank you.
